A Grupp Hike

Yesterday A grupp embarked on a gruelling hike to Summerland Point. Upon their return to Sõrve, nature proved to be too much for the elanikud as they opted to camp inside the Rec hut instead of outdoors. Whether anyone actually got any quality sleep is unknown.

Estonian Folklore

Every nest of snakes contains a spirit called the Ussikuningas, who grows much larger than a regular snake and gains a comb on its head like a rooster.

They are able to speak in human tongues, and will come to help you if you are an ally of the snakes.

B-GRUPP NIGHT GAME.

A typical day at Sõrve

I woke up in the morning to the sound of Elsa outside my window. I jumped out of bed, put on my favourite dogs and went to morning exercises. This morning's exercises included Erik and Thalia. But where were my juhid, Estonia and Vanaema? They must have been Crazy.

After a quick swim in the pool, I went back to my tare to clean up. My tare was very punane. There was weetbix all over the floor.

After cleaning up, I went to the söögisaal for breakfast. The smell of lollies made my tummy rumble.

Time for inspection! The inspectors said our tare was awesome and hilarious. At lipuheiskamine, kuus tare won inspection. They must be really excited.

ELANIKUD TO JUHID- FIRST IMPRESSIONS: A CHAT WITH CHARLOTTE AND LILY

Is being a juht different to how you expected it to be as an elanik? What surprised you?

Lily: It's different but still magical. It's nice to provide that magic for someone else especially because you know what that magic felt like as a kid. It's very much like a cycle feeling for me. Also the friendships in the leadership group mean you get to spread out rather than just hanging out with your hut.

Charlotte: Very different. I saw leaders going around doing activities so that was to be expected but I didn't really expect how rewarding it would be to have a hut; to get to know the kids, the bedtime stories etc.
