Two in a row!!!!

Winning is important, but being a good sportsperson is the true meaning of the game.

Team Juhid have successfully maintained their position as pioneers of pool volleyball with a 2 - 1 win over the A Groupers.

"Maybe one day the A group will bring their A game!" Marz said,

"Sigi can't swim! What's he doing in the pool?"

The Juhid started strong with a decisive win on the first set, however A group managed to rally to tie the match 1 - 1.

This only inspired the leaders more, which concluded in their victory with a devastating 21 - 15.

Nice try, maybe next time eh?

Special thank you to Hendrik for his fair and unbiased refereeing.

Meanwhile, the C and B groupers went on a jungle safari, where they made binoculars and ventured out on an expedition around camp, playing games in search for strange and interesting animals.

12 months in an evening!

This afternoon the elanikud experienced a surreal occurrence in which they experienced all 12 months of the year in one evening. From New Years to Christmas, A, B and C group found themselves having to celebrate 12 different holidays in the space of several hours.

Sörve fish predict baby gender

It started as a regular boy meets girl in the most romantic city in Europe, Tallinn. When Maali first locked eyes with the hunky Canadian Esto Hendrik, a saga began that has lasted for 7 years. Within a year of meeting, Hendrik was in Sörve, chasing stick insects and his heart. Since then, Hendrik has naturally acclimatised to Australian culture, becoming what has been recently coined as the Estonian Bogan. Fast forward to yesterday, the couple were celebrating their forthcoming child with a baby shower held at the boat shed. The responsibility of predicting the gender of the baby was left to the fish of Lake Macquarie. If the fish jumped right it would be a boy, left, a girl. Each fish jumped right, so let's preemptively congratulate the beaming couple on their new boy (or girl, i'm not superstitious), due in 7 weeks!

CORRECTIONS: Okay I don't know how but I made even worse mistakes yesterday than before. This time I'm DEFINITELY sure there's NO SPELLING ERRORS, and if you find one and bring it to me I'll give you a prize. But I have a feeling I won't be giving anything to anyone >:)

Issue 3:
- How in the WORLD did I misspell peacock.
- I'm sorry Tare Kolm I printed out like 100 copies before I even noticed that I didn't change the 8 to a 3. It won't happen again I promise. And there was something else you were annoyed about but I can't remember right now.
- I've been walking around saying how much inspiration I've drawn from 2012's Sosin by SvenRuss Corp, without acknowledging the contribution of third member, Matt Porm. My apologies to Matt.

FAMOUS ESTOS

James Murdoch, son of Rupert Murdoch, has a half Estonian mother. No news on a hostile takeover of The Sosin, however.
