BREAKING: Livonian king invades Estonia

The Queen and her subjects have triumphed!

It's the 13th century AD. The feudal system is in place, the Estonian kingdom, and the peasants, lords and nobles were living in relative peace. This is, however, until the cruel king of Livonia invaded and claimed the region as part of his kingdom. The Estonians were forced to endure several trials and tribulations, such as the descent into hell to steal the Hat of Nails, restoring the jaanipaev bonfire to dispell the evil spirits and bad omens, dealing with an irritating foreign merchant, and gambling with jesters and drunken lowlives (with the shirts off their backs), and even facing off against the King of Livonia himself. Fortunately, with the help of the brave people of Estonia, the queen was able to gather enough gold to ensure the safety of her people and the Livonian king and his knights were sent off to sea, never to be seen again. Tomas Kuru, local fool

Make sure you thank Jana and the rest of the Juhid for their tireless efforts in making this the biggest big game yet.

Honestly, I had no involvement whatsoever and I was dumbfounded with the amount of effort put in this year. Plus we totally fooled all of you, none of you had ANY idea.

Great Moments in Estonian History

Prior to the Restoration of Independence, there were several spontaneous night-singing demonstrations at Tallinn Song Festival Grounds. A chain of two million people was formed from Tallinn to Vilnius known as the Baltic Way

The birth of a country

This year, in less than two months, Estonia is celebrating it's 100th birthday!

The little nation on the Baltic Sea was officially born on 24th February 1918, the day it declared it's independence from Russia after hundreds of years of occupation by various different countries.

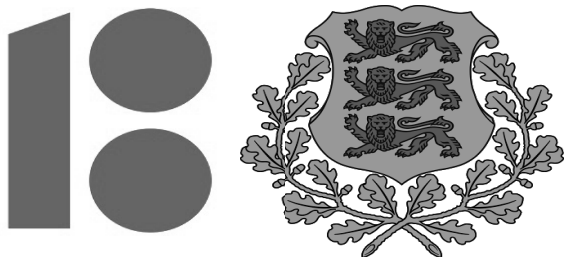

Estonia then successfully fought a two year War of Independence - against both Germany and Russia - until the Peace Treaty of Tartu was signed on 2 February 1920.

Some of you may have great-grandparents or relatives who fought to create the nation of Estonia. There will be many celebrations in Estonia and around the world to mark this important anniversary, including in Australia. I encourage you to attend these where the opportunity arises.

I hope that in your home, your family will light a candle on 24th February 2018 to remember this important day, and make a wish that Estonia will continue to live and prosper as a valued member of the community of nations of the world.

Palju õnne Eesti! Long live Estonia! "Elagu Eesti!".

CORRECTIONS: That does it. If one more of you comes up to me while I'm eating to tell me the answer to the riddle or to show me one of my many embarrassing mistakes, I'm going to lose it. I'm implementing a new rule. "If there's food on my plate, you just sit and wait." I didn't even notice the seconds sign come up so I missed out on another serve of delicious shredded beef. More corrections

Issue 4:

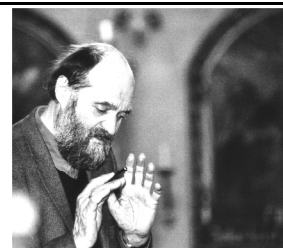

- My intel was wrong, apparently it is "Hannah + Linus???"
- I meant to say out of sight. Blame Conrad he checked it
- Spelling canoeing that way was just embarrassing. Again, blame Conrad.
- I also spelt Äzlän's name wrong, sorry little buddy!

WARNING: KILLER DUCKS STILL AT LARGE

Reports of ducks the size of horses roaming Sörve and eating children has been confirmed. If any of these creatures are spotted STAY AWAY. Even if it's a small duck, the killer ones could be lurking around the corner. Killer duck's favourite food is B and C groupers and it's turn ons include walks on the beach and cold margheritas.

FAMOUS ESTOS

Arvo Pärt's music compositions are a minimalistic feast for the ears, and has innovated his own compositional method called 'tintinnabuli', named for the bell like harmonies. The Estonian composer is known as a "living legend".

Quick Gossip: Rhys lost his hair in a tragic accident earlier this year and is wearing a wig.
