A and B Group Lõke a huge success

There's pretty much one word to summarise the A-Group hike, which is "mind-blowing". I wish I got to go on hikes like this when I was in A group...

If you turn to page 3 there is a little photo journey documenting their epic quest to ~~drop a ring in a volcano~~ go have a nice swim and play a bit of beach cricket.

Meanwhile, the B Group enjoyed games on the oval and then shared jokes and songs and damper at the B Group Lõke, hopefully that was enough to knock the energy out of them and give the leaders a little bit of relief.

Last night was also the A Group Lõke, so they're probably all shuffling around like zombies this morning. If you see one asleep, don't hesitate to draw a moustache on them and send me the pic.

THE EST FILES

This image was taken earlier this week and was brought to the attention of Agents Mülder and Skalli.

Although the image is low quality, it appears to capture the mysterious bunyip as it passes unsuspecting camp goers.

However, after careful and thorough analysis, the bunyip in question was revealed to be just your common Andrew Kass.

The Truth is kinda blurry.

Corrections:

NONE. ABSOLUTELY NONE. Oh wait I spelled Toomas' last name wrong lol sorry Toomas I'll let my proof reader know that they're being let go. Also, to the joker who keeps putting "be funnier" into the Sosin box - I will find you.

There were no survivors
