Handsome jester steals show, books

Lunch began as normal today, until it was interrupted by two beautiful fairy godmothers, bearing treasured fairy tales of Sörve Kingdom. Suddenly however, a devious but strikingly handsome jester burst in quite dramatically, and made off with all the fairy tales. The fairy godmothers tasked the children of the Kingdom of Sörve to write new tales, and present them to the queen (and to a lesser extent her evil sister).

Stories of giant talking beanstalks, invading "beasts" and criminal pigs were written, performed, and archived in the Kingdom's library.

It is safe to say that evil has been thwarted forever and these magical tales will be told in the Kingdom of Sörve for hundreds of generations.

I would also like to mention that Harri Rodgers has foolishly challenged me to a game of One On One basketball during this afternoon's rest period. More information on the Sörve Showdown is in the Sports Section on page 4.

THE ESTO FILES

Just as about all hope was lost for Agents Müller and Skalli, the bunyip chose to reveal itself to C Group.

While C Group were learning of the legend at the Lily Pond, they discovered a secret method of summoning the bunyip. To their horror, the beast emerged from it's hollow and chased the C Groupers away, unaware that all he wanted was a hug.

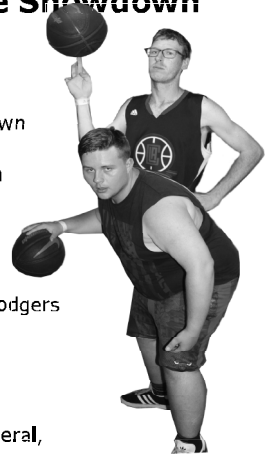

However, the SBI agents were not present, and only photo evidence was able to be obtained.
