Boys beat girls, or girls beat boys, I'm not sure

After a full day of sailing, canoeing and tants-ing, the two sexes separated into teams, dressed as their respective opposite gender and challenged each other to skill-based activities. Impressive performances were seen from the boys (girls) and the girls (boys, confusing I know). These events brought out the competitive nature, and inspiring displays of teamwork and encouragement in seemingly everyone. However, in the end the girls (boys) beat the boys (girls) 19 - 14 points, proving that neither sex isn't really that good.

This was followed by a game of spotlight (or; who can get bitten by mysterious insects in the dark the most). After everyone thoroughly extended their knowledge on fish, Lily, Charlotte and Matilda emerged victorious!

I've been seeing some pretty gnarly sunburns too, so even though I say it might storm, you still gotta slather that stuff on thick or you'll roast like a pork chop.

The Sörve Showdown

A (very) small crowd gathered to watch as Harri and Tomas battle it out to 21 on the basketball court. Harri took an early lead of 3 - 0, until Tomas found his shooting form and was able to rain down shots from distance to quickly close the gap. Harri beefed it out on the inside, grabbing 12 rebounds and asserting his dominance in the post with an impressive block. Frustrated, Tomas resorted to the cowardly step-back jumper and drawing fouls and was able to take the lead. The game went for most of Uiumine, but ultimately Tomas was able to close out the game. The final score was 21 - 8.
